Local traction stocks were flat. The Gransers were steady, but the Pacifics did nothing worth mentioning.

Trading in the market was fairly active and well distributed. Little attention was paid to the war news. The impetus was purely local and mostly manipulation.

A spuri of 21-4 in American Hoop helped the general list to a higher level. Traders' offerings then appeared, which made marked inroads on the prices of some stocks, the Baltimore & Ohio stocks reacting nearly a point.

Business slackened somewhat, but near midday the activity was resumed and prices improved again. Manhattan was lifted to 981-2, Metropolitan rose an extreme 21-2 and some of the low-grade railroad stocks recovered to the highest. Bonds showed irregularity and transactions were in normal volume.

Prices ebbed and flowed within an hour range and the market fell into a waiting attitude. The undertone continued firm. Glucose, Great Northern preferred and National Lead rose from 1 to 13-4 and Third avenue got up to 102. Metropolitan reacted 11-4.

Industrial stocks were strengthened by a rise of two points in American Tobacco. Sugar, which had sagged below 114, railled a point and there was substantial improvement in National Steel on dividend expectations. Not many changes were observed in railroad stocks outside of Louistile and Norfolk & Western. The latter crossed 25 on the strength of its fourth week of January earnings.
